LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Please limit letters to 50 words. Give name and address for reference; name will be withheld if desired.

Along The Same Line

. . . Can you tell me if the young boy who played the role of Thornberry's son in the Ozzie and Harriet Show of January 9th was really Don DeFore's son?

Edith Black, Elkins Park, Pa.

● Will Thornberry II was played by Alan Dinehart III, son of the late motion picture actor, Alan Dinehart.—Ed.

Where's The Racket?

. . . Now that "My Little Margie" has taken over Reed Hadley's Racket Squad, will we ever see it again?

Susan Ver Bryck, Woodbury, N. J.

● The handsome Reed Hadley exposes those rackets in his new time slot on alternate Saturdays at 9:30 P.M.—Ed.

Real Life Guy

. . . We would like to know if "Mr. Peepers" (Wally Cox) is a science teacher in real life. This is to settle an argument.

Kenny and Wilma Hiester,
W. Reading, Pa.

● The greatest tribute one can make to an actor is to think he's not acting. Wally Cox in real life is a very scientific comedian.—Ed.

The House Unhoused

. . . My friends and I would like to know why "House In The Garden" hasn't been on the "Kate Smith Hour." We miss it!

Therese Gillette, E. Catasauqua, Pa.

● The daily "House In The Garden" playlets were scheduled for a limited time only. Even though they achieved great popularity the skits were cancelled because Kate Smith Show producers wanted to present more variety on the show.—Ed.

Where Ramar Should Go

. . . We're sick of seeing those pictures of Ramar and the Jungle repeated. If he isn't going to have any new adventures, maybe he should go to a new jungle!

Mrs. A. L. G., Brigantine, N. J.

Almost Correct Conclusion

. . . Being a guitarist, I naturally studied very carefully Les Paul's fingerwork when he and his charming wife, Mary Ford, appeared on Jackie Gleason's show recently. I have arrived at the following conclusion: while a record was playing offstage, supplying the sound, Les and Mary merely faked enough motions to fool the average fan. Am I right or wrong? Sid Smith, Phila.

● You're partially right. Lots of folks were mystified about the fact that Mary Ford seemed to sing in six-part harmony and Les Paul was doing impossible stunts on his guitar. The "Bye Bye Blues" number was a composite recording, Les Paul being a pioneer with this stunt. The number was re-recorded six times, with Mary Ford supplying new harmonies to her own lead and Les dubbing in more guitar effects. The recording was played backstage on the show, with the duo supplying a seventh musical and voice effect.—Ed.

Puzzled

. . . My friends and I are puzzled about the Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis show in which someone appeared as Jerry's mother. Was she his real mother? Doreen Schwed, Phila.

● Of course not.—Ed.

Unfinished Story

. . . Did Ed Sullivan show the second chapter of "The Samuel Goldwyn Story?" If not, do you have any information as to when he will finish it? Walt, Trenton, N. J.

● Part two of the Goldwyn Story was postponed during the period Ed Sullivan was hospitalized. We're sure Sullivan expects to complete it but as yet no specific date has been set.—Ed.

DON'T CUSS THE COMMERCIAL

It Pays for Your Front Row Seat In Entertainment

ARE you the type that gets up and heads for the kitchen to get a quick snack when the commercial bit appears on your television screen? If you are (and many of us fall into this category), you're really not playing cricket with the sponsor. It's the same as deriding the guy who just handed you a pair of orchestra ducats for a first night.

Corny as it may sound, a few commercials is a small price to pay for the millions of dollars worth of free entertainment the televiewer receives each week. Did you ever tote up the total cash outlay you'd have to make to secure tickets to see Jimmy Durante, Helen Traubel, Tallulah Bankhead, Fred Waring, Milton Berle, Perry Como, et al? In all fairness, let's take a look at the cash the sponsors are dishing out so that the TV fan can enjoy the best in entertainment.

A Few Costs

According to Variety, a budget of 25 million dollars has been set aside for just telefilm production in 1953. Fifteen "I Love Lucy" shows cost $450,000, 45 Fireside Theatre stanzas add up to $900,000, 20 Joan Davis films cost $600,000, 18 Burns & Allen shows total $540,000, cost of filming "Our Miss Brooks" for January through May viewing is $570,000, 44 "Dragnet" celluloids (which covers most of 1953) is estimated to reach $1,320,000.

"Omnibus," the new CBS venture into unusual video, carries a weekly price tag of $65,000 for its 90-minutes of life. The All Star Revue needs $50,000 per week for its hour-long show, and so it goes.

Who foots these bills? The sponsor, of course. Without the sponsor's bankroll there would be no show without a show there would be very little in the way of top-rated entertainment, without quality programs the televiewer would probably hock his set for a stereopticon. Basically, it boils down to the fact that there is one source responsible for our present-day big-time television entertainment . . . the sponsor.

So why bite the hand that feeds you? We don't advocate your rushing out to stock up on every product you see advertised on television. A counter suggestion, however, is a certain amount of loyalty when shopping. If you enjoy a show sponsored by such and such a product, keep the brand name in mind. When it comes to a choice between the brand of the company that sponsors your favorite show and the product of another company, take the sponsor's. At least, take the sponsor's brand when you like it equally as well as another. After all, your purchase is indirectly feeding the kitty that pays the tab for your favorite television program!

Don't walk out on the sponsor's spot on the show. Be a sport, listen to his story . . . he may have a new product or a new feature that is of interest. He may have an offer that you'll like.

If the sponsor can strike the fancy of just a portion of the audience every week then he'll happily go on footing the mountainous bills assuring the TV audience front-row seats at regular performances in the entertainment world.

For your own good, humor that sponsor! Sit tight during his spot on the show, and don't cuss those commercials. They're payin' the freight!

Why Frankie Laine Sings Those SONGS FROM THE HEART

WHEN Frankie Laine sings a song, it stays sung. When Frankie Laine records a song, other vocalists shy away from the tune. And when Mr. Rhythm puts on a show in a night club, on TV or in a theatre, the audience is fractured.

Yes, Frankie is a real gone performer who may be seen here regularly soon in his vid-film series and more immediately when he opens next Thursday at the Latin Casino.

Tough Struggle

It was very fortunate for Frankie that he didn't take the easy path to fame. For it was the long years of struggling that brought about his style of singing from the heart. Frankie attributes his distinctive warbling to the after effects of his battle to hit the top, and each time he sings, he "feels" the song and makes listeners get the same reaction as the words seem to flow right from the bottom of his soul. For many years he was a "mere nothing" as "I starved to death." Once he found the formula to sing up a storm, he became in his fans' parlance "the craziest ever."

How did he do it? Simply by using discrimination in the type of song he chose to sing. While he was struggling along singing for beer and beef at some clubs and for spaghetti at other places, Frankie learned why he wasn't going anywhere. "I was singing the smooth-ballad style and doing nothing to my listeners. I was concentrating on the blues."

Somewhere in the midst of all the lean years, Frankie started to roll. He dropped his "syrup and butter routine" and switched to his current dynamic style. He credits Louie Armstrong's hot licks on the trumpet as a primary cause.

"The way the guy was doing it killed me," he explains. "So I tried turning my voice into an instrument. I poured it on. Lots of times I overdid it but at least I had my own style."

From the time he switched styles, Frankie's star ascended. He soon recorded "I May Be Wrong" and followed up with the terrific hit "That's My Desire" which sold a million records. He kept going up and up.

"And I've learned a good lesson along the way," he says. "For a couple of years after 'That's My Desire,' I sang anything that came along. Some turned out to be hits. Some were flops. I didn't realize what was wrong until I checked back. Then I realized that I was good for only a certain type of song and that those were the songs that clicked for me. Thereafter I decided to sing only those songs."

Ever since he's been carefully picking his songs, he's had a hit on the average of every three months. Tunes like Lucky Old Sun, Mule Train, Jezebel, etc. have sent his platter sales sky high.

"Songs pitched at the emotions are the ones more apt to register and my songs have a more or less quiet fury about them. They're dotted with accents and dynamos, loud and soft," he reveals.

Famous Gestures

Frank (real name Frank Lo Vecchio) is also famed for his motions but claims people are fooled into believing he's actually moving around. "I move very little. My feet stand still but my body swings and my hands express the thoughts of the song which I feel from my head to my toes. There's no planning the motions. They just come out."

That's what Frankie says. But you look at him and you'll see him shuffling, jumping, pedaling and ending up with a cheerleader finale. He used to sing with his eyes closed but now they're wide open and swiveling in their sockets.

Frankie loves to sing stories in song but has hits of all sorts—Shine (jazz), Jealousy (Tango), Cry of the Wild Goose (folk type), etc. Every song he sings gets a special arrangement or a half-rewrite job by his pianist Carl Fisher. Virtually no other vocalist will touch a song he has recorded because the song immediately is identified with Frankie.

Some facts about Frankie's life. He wed former movie actress Nan Grey in 1950 and has two daughters in his Encino, Calif. home. He was born in Chicago Mar. 30, 1913, grew up in the heart of Little Italy, sang as an altar boy and was prodded at 15 into singing first at a dance whose band had David Rose at the piano, Gene Krupa on the drums, and Muggsy Spanier on the trumpet.

In time he worked with bands, reached New York with four cents in his pocket and rationed four penny candy bars on his Central Park bench sleeping accomodations until landing a radio job.

He's completed quite a few movies, records for Columbia Records, has broken records all over the nation wherever he makes personal appearances and also clipped the mark at the famed Palladium this past year.

Although he's a far cry from being a Frank Sinatra (since he weighs 195 pounds) Frankie learned on a recent trip to Italy that his family name many years ago was Sinatra. And but for Fate there could have been two of them. But they're so different. Frankie S. leaves you limp. Frankie L. leaves you charged.

TV WIVES

Mrs. Arthur Godfrey

EVERY wife of every entertainment celebrity knows she must lead the life of a guppy in a goldfish bowl. What she eats, what she wears, what she does, where she goes, are items of public domain.

Some like it, some don't. Those who like it find life much easier than those who would prefer quiet anonymity. One of the most successful in the latter group is Mrs. Arthur Godfrey.

Wife of one of the most publicized, photographed, and quoted men in show business, little was known of Mrs. Godfrey. Never had a picture of the famous red-head's spouse ever been published. Cosmopolitan magazine finally broke the ice recently with an article and pictures on Godfrey's private life.

A former secretary at the NBC Washington offices, where Godfrey started his radio career, Mary Bourks has been Mrs. Arthur Godfrey since 1938. An attractive blonde, she quietly and efficiently handles the functions of Godfrey's 800-acre farm near Leesburg, Va., where guests often include General George C. Marshall, Rear Admiral Dan Gallery, Eddie Rickenbacker, C. E. Wilson, and Bernard Baruch.

Keeps Out of Spotlight

As the mother of two small Godfreys, Mike, 12, and Patricia Ann, 10, Mary Godfrey seldom strays from the home territory. She does her own shopping at a supermarket near her home. Her children attend the local public school. She likes to keep out of the spotlight at all times. Few of Arthur's New York acquaintances know her.

Most fans would imagine that the life of the wife of a man who attracts approximately fifty million listeners via nine-and-one-half hours of radio and television performances per week, earns more than a million dollars per year, and brings home, after taxes, close to $300,000, would be chock full of glamour and glitter. This would probably be true if Arthur or Mary so desired such an atmosphere . . . but both demand privacy with a capital P when it comes to Arthur's 'off the air' hours.

Godfrey a Grandfather

Godfrey, who recently was placed in the grandfather category by his son, Dick, child of a previous marriage (which ended in divorce), has never permitted his children to appear on a Godfrey show. Mike was christened Arthur Morton Godfrey, Jr., but was nicknamed Mike. Several years ago Godfrey, Sr., had his son's name changed legally to Michael Arthur Godfrey. Papa says he felt the duplicate name would be a handicap in later life.

Who's to know just what goes through a wife's mind when her husband is the type who'll try anything from tight-rope walking to soloing the newest Navy jet? One thing is sure, Mary Godfrey is always prepared when her husband has his co-pilot fly in guests from Detroit or Minneapolis or wherever the friend may be.

Mrs. Godfrey's boy is an admitted fresh air fiend. His 'restful' weekends on his Virginia farm cause guests to ponder upon Arthur's definition of 'restful'.

RARE PHOTO: One of the few available photos of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Godfrey, (reprinted courtesy of Cosmopolitan magazine). An attractive, hazel-eyed blonde, Mrs. Godfrey shuns publicity and spotlight of entertainment world.

It's said the red-head arises about 8 a.m. heads for the swimming pool, then saddles up one of the Arabian horses from his stable, checks the farm equipment, and continues the whirl 'til at least sundown.

Mrs. Godfrey has caught her husband's enthusiasm for ice skating and Arthur now plans to build a rink on his farm.

Mary joins her venturesome husband in swimming, riding and ice skating, whenever his over-crowded schedule permits a few minutes of leisure. Godfrey seems to be fired with a haste to make up for lost time, both in his entertainment career and his social endeavors.

Perhaps it's because he didn't click the first time around. As Arthur puts it, "New York is all right if you don't let it get you. I came here (New York) the first time in nineteen thirty-four. I flopped. You know why? I forgot what I was. I lost my sense of values. I tried to become a Broadway character. So I got fired and went back to Washington."

Wary Fellow

Mrs. Godfrey knew Arthur before he became first-cousin to nine out of ten televiewers in the country. She probably knows the underlying reason for her husband's wariness of strangers, his sensitiveness and uncertainty with friends, his suspicions that someone might 'use' him . . . for, according to the Cosmopolitan article, Arthur Godfrey is a moody person.

Now that the public has finally met Mrs. Arthur Godfrey, one wonders if she will be able to continue her quiet place in the shade of the spotlight. Be the good Lord willin', Mrs. Arthur Godfrey will manage nicely, thank you.

The Secrets I've Learned From

STRIKE IT RICH

by Warren Hull

MINE is a heart-rending job as emcee of "Strike It Rich"—but I love it! Each day I hear enough tales of sadness to last me a lifetime but I wouldn't change places with anybody. Each week I share a considerable amount of woe with others. They confide in me their innermost secrets—stories of a desperately needed operation or artificial limbs—or some of the starkest needs in food, shelter, clothing.

Don't imagine that I can do my chore each day, then go home and forget it. "Strike It Rich" changes lives, my own included. You can't see life down to bedrock without getting a new set of values. You change your mind about what things are of primary importance; you learn about the dignity of man and what a friend is.

Your wife and family learn with you. Yes, the Hulls have discovered the secret of worthwhile living—that the happiest people (in our opinion) are those to whom giving has become second nature.

On the show, where we try to help those temporarily down, I must maintain the outward calm of a father confessor. But, the wear and tear on my emotions is something to reckon with.

Every day Sue, my wife, sits in front of our set at home, wondering who will crack my emotional shell this time. A year ago when she took me for better or worse, we thought her biggest job would be to weld her three kids and my three into a happy family. This she is doing with outstanding skill.

But who was to tell her what depths of spiritual strength she would need for the desperate people who call our home at midnight. Or . . . for the blue days when I have to do two live shows with the accumulated problems of the participants weighing heavily upon me. Yet, she has taken the program—as well as its emcee—for better or worse.

Hospitalized Soldier

There she sits at show time. A mother is telling of her son returned from Korea. He is young—on his way home, minus a leg. The father is ill and cannot work. The mother is only asking for a couch on which her son may be comfortable during his month's furlough from the hospital.

Poised though I look, controlled though I try to be, I fluff and choke up. At home, Sue knows why. My son too is young and in the Navy. It might easily have been he. Two more of our boys will be going any time now. We are parents and know what this mother feels.

"Strike It Rich" touches our children too. Sally, who is nine, is forever giving away her clothes to little girls who need them more than she. In fact, her generosity is far ahead of her wardrobe. And Buffy, our young lady of sixteen, had quite an experience with her "mad money." She had $10 for a year-and-a-half but never quite found anything exciting enough to "blow" it on. Then one day she came to the program and after the show told me in a small voice: "I handed my ten dollars to the usher to give to that second family."

Nothing Like Sharing

Proud as we are of our kids, their sacrifices are negligible compared to that of the young people who are our contestants. Often after winning money for something they badly need, they'll listen to the next participant and decide his need is greater than their own. I've seen many impulsively hand over half their winnings without one regret.

Yes, many a secret has touched me and mine. Thanks to "Strike It Rich" today I'm a bigger person with a deeper understanding of all people and their problems. I've learned that we ARE our brother's keeper—that there is much to do in the world, that everyone's help is needed and that the really happy people are those who accept their responsibility to serve and to share.

HEART LINE: Adrienne McGinnis, 14, of 3825 Dartmouth Dr., Phila., and Rosemary Moore, 4, of 132 S. Scott Ave., Glenolden, Pa., invite Warren Hull to bring his show to Philadelphia to aid the Children's Heart Hospital at which both girls were treated.

Bouquets 'n Barbs / by HANK O'HARE

Bob Hope

I wish I could make up my mind about Bob Hope. Just when I decide he's a terrific comedian and start looking forward to his shows, he'll come on with one that scrapes the bottom of the barrel for mediocrity.

I can't exactly blame myself since Hope is such an unpredictable character. I remember once settling down to enjoy that telethon he headed up for the benefit of our invading Olympiads. Hope probably was on camera more than any other individual but his chief contribution to the entertainment was a most frequent: "How 'bout that?"

And so you say to yourself: "this is a comedian?"—and determine to cross the guy off your list. Then along comes another show which you decide to pass up in favor of a book or a quiet evening paying your bills. The next day you read the columns of your confreres and there's nothing but rave notices.

I have enjoyed many a Hope show. The thing about Hope is that he lays an egg just about as often as he lays 'em in the aisles. He's like that little gal in the nursery rhyme who, when she's good she's very, very good and when she's bad she's . . . . well Hope can be worse.

I remember years ago getting fed up with Hope's machine-gun precision in delivering gags on radio. Right about then, Hope had just wound up his most successful success formula—i.e. you take your show to an Army, Navy, Marine or Wac camp and just throw 'em all the Army, Navy, Marine and Wac gags in the book. When you run out of gags—you can always change camps.

There was no doubt that Hope scored a hit with the idea. There were loads of local camp jokes that drew the heartiest of yacks from the boys. The fact that the folks at home didn't understand what was going on didn't matter. The folks at home could hear our boys enjoying the fun and that was enough for them.

After those camp shows, Hope was less effective. Just when I decided he was very unfunny—that without his huge supply of gag material from his writers he was lost—I met Bob Hope in Philadelphia at a press conference. The guy got off on the wrong foot with the newspaper gentlemen by being almost 2 hours late. Then, while he was posing for pictures and being the center of a cross-fire of questions I got the true measure of the greatness of a comedian. Not only did he get us quickly back into a good mood but inside of five minutes we were in hysterics.

And so . . . . I'm going to make up my mind not to make up my mind about Bob Hope. By the time my review panning one show would be published, his current show would be a smasheroo!

These ups and downs of Hope's are not unique. There are other comedians who run the gamut from the terrible to the terrific. The reason is obvious. If the comedian is working under tremendous pressure from outside commitments, it turns up on his TV show in poor timing, fluffed lines and unfunny bits. If he really has a chance to concentratte, we get a superb TV show.

Viewers don't really need critics to tell them a comedian's show is bad and why. They need a pipeline into the studios informing them whether a real effort has been made to entertain them.

JOE MARINE

WHEN the Pennsylvanians go into a slow, sweet introduction, the lights dim and a romantic background comes into view, the female televiewers heave a sigh and settle back to listen to the strong, baritone voice of Joe Marine.

A guy who draws the sighs of the gals but whose sturdy frame and good solid appearance also gets the nod of the male audience, Marine is one of the many young Americans whose career was halted by World War II. Back in 1942 Joe had successfully auditioned for Harry James but the Army had first choice. As a rifleman with an infantry division during the Battle of the Bulge Joe won the Bronze Star.

When the shooting had ceased, Joe stayed in Europe and worked with some top show business names. In 1945 he returned to the States and had several New York night club bookings. Fred Waring caught his act and asked the Bronx boy if he would join the famous Pennsylvanians. Since then Joe has been the balladeer of the Waring troupe.

Joe's show biz idols include his bossman, Fred Waring, Perry Como and Dick Haymes. His own recording of "One Little Candle" has done quite a brisk business at record counters across the nation.

TV'S PIONEER GOSPEL SHOW

Dr. Percy B. Crawford and family use video to carry their message of inspiration

REV. Percy B. Crawford, dynamic and youthful at 50, is the moving spirit of "Youth On The March," TV's first gospel program. Along with some 70 young volunteer musicians and singers he presents a weekly inspirational show—a combination of good music and down-to-earth evangelism.

Dr. Crawford gets an assist from the six other members of the Crawford family, all of whom are active participants in the show. There's Mrs. Ruth Duval Crawford and the "Five D's"—as they're affectionately called—Don, 15; Dick, 13; Dan, 11; Dean, 8, and, last but not least, Donna Lee, 3. The latter could also be "D for Dazzler" since she's a blonde beauty and a real TV personality.

Helping Dr. Crawford carry his message of Christianity over the air are the Youth on the March orchestra, glee club and brass quartet—all volunteer performers from the King's

IN CHARGE OF MUSIC: Mrs. Ruth Duval Crawford, left, does the musical arranging. Here she smooths over a passage with Sylvia McCutcheon Ward and Robert Brooks. In the show, excellent music is blended with a spiritual message.

THE GLEE CLUB: The lovely voices, the fresh, young faces of the singers and the obvious fervor in their hearts are effective and inspiring. The youngsters are volunteers, give freely of their time for the show rehearsals.

College in Delaware and various high schools in the Philadelphia area. In this department, it's Mrs. Crawford who takes over as pianist, singer, musical arranger for the program—quite a monumental chore in addition to running the Crawford household.

Informality is the keynote of the program. Singers and musicians frequently are seen doing their homework at rehearsals or even while the show is on the air.

Of course, the most-anticipated portion of the show is the message of the TV minister himself. Rev. Crawford's solemn prayer and soft-spoken but hard-hitting gospel is reminiscent of the late Billy Sunday. In his 21 years of radio and TV, Dr. Crawford has traveled an estimated 1,000,000 miles to and from prayer meetings—sometimes as far as the Hollywood Bowl where 20,000 once heard him—or to Soldier's Field in Chicago, where he drew a crowd of 70,000.

"Youth On The March" is but one phase of Dr. Crawford's many evangelistic activities. He heads up King's College, (faculty of 30) three camps (staff of 125) a book store and book club plus the "Youth Newsette" a bi-weekly illustrated magazine offering news of the Christian world.

FIVE "D'S": The Crawfords five children, from left, Dean, 8; Dick, 13; Donna Lee, 3; Don, 15, and Dan, 11. The children learn their songs in 15 minutes, the three older boys read music and harmonize as they go along.

WE, THE HORSES SPEAK

Children's TV NOOK

GENE AUTRY'S CHAMPION—On the road I travel in a bright red van. "Champion" appears on the sides of the van in large gold letters. This is so everyone knows I am inside the red van.

Gene has seen to it that I have all the comforts of my home stable—air conditioning and everything!

The inside of my traveling quarters is lined with cork. If the driver stops suddenly for a red light and I am thrown against the wall, I won't get hurt. The cork is a soft bouncy substance that pads my fall.

I don't like to brag but I have traveled all over the United States. And beside that I've traveled on land, sea and air!

HOPALONG CASSIDY'S TOPPER—In my opinion my specially built trailer TOPS these other fellows' quarters by far. The trailer I travel in is trimmed in black and white. These are the colors of my master and myself.

Hoppy lets me ride in nothing but the best. I couldn't ask for better treatment, or a better master.

My trailer has all sorts of modern conveniences. There is even a special compartment for my saddle.

I'm really a vagabond at heart. I love to travel. When we go 60 miles an hour on the open road, I neigh with delight.

ROY ROGERS' TRIGGER—If you think Champion travels in style, you should see my quarters! I have a personal truck and trailer for my use while traveling. My trailer has three padded stalls. It also has kennel space for dogs. (I must admit those pups sometimes get under foot, though!)

I am not a poor host. I also have room in my trailer for humans. There is a bedroom, closets and a kitchen for overnight guests.

All in all, being a famous horse has its advantages!

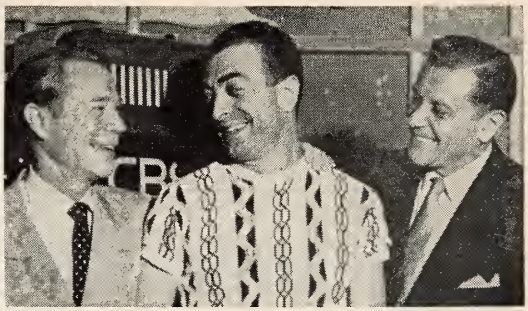
HI-JINKS: Red Buttons complicates the life of nightclub comedienne Pat Carroll in a typical scene from the Red Buttons Show.

DRASTIC DEMONSTRATION: World's heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano shows George Jessel the fight game isn't for sissies during the famous boxer's visit on the All Star Revue.

REHEARSAL SCENE: Jimmy Durante and Sophie Tucker seem to have as much fun offstage as on camera . . . at least according to this picture.

DRAMA FAVORITE: Pert Shirley Standlee is much in demand as a result of her successful appearances on drama shows.



REUNION: When Joe E. Brown (left) appeared as a "helping hand" on Warren Hull's Strike It Rich show he learned the cameraman was Marty Stuart (center) a former buddy he met while entertaining troops on Guadalcanal.

INTERESTED SPECTATORS: Roger Conant gives youngsters in the studio audience of "Meet Me At The Zoo" a peek at a rare, red South American tegu.

A SMALL AIRING: Burr Tillstrom takes his sidekick Kukla for a brief breath of fresh air as a respite from the busy rehearsal sessions.

UNLESS Fate intervenes once again, pro football is finally slated to sit down in the witness chair while its television blackout program is probed.

This event is slated for Monday Jan. 26 when the National Football League has a date in our Federal Court with the Justice Department.

Originally the NFL was to defend itself for alleged violations of the Sherman Anti-Trust laws way back on June 16. But the federal judge postponed the case because of a lack of time to hear it. This six-month reprieve enabled the NFL to operate the same radio and television blackout program in the season just ended.

Here is the crux of the problem. The government contends that it is illegal for a league and its members to agree on a TV blackout. In the NFL, home games are not screened, while a game from another city can't be shown on TV in a city in which a NFL team is playing at home.

Away Games OK

The only games carried are the away games of clubs back to their home town. In addition if a holiday or special game is arranged that doesn't conflict with a team's schedule, that game can go on.

Bert Bell, the NFL commissioner, doesn't think there's a thing wrong with the program. In fact, Bernard Nordlinger, the league's attorney, insists the league's TV agreement is merely in self-defense and that unlimited television would tear down what each team helped build up. Harry Epps, the government attorney, fails to agree. The Justice Department's theory is that any unreasonable restraint on trade is a public injury and that the government feels the Philadelphia Eagles, for example, should be able to sell their TV rights anywhere they please.

Under this type of program the Eagles televised all their away games this year. They were front runners for their conference crown and yet when the receipts were counted at the end of the year the club was approximately $40,000 in the red. The team didn't draw at its home games where it has such burdensome overheads as the ball park percentage plus the $20,000 guarantee to each visiting club.

Crowds Didn't Come

We wonder what television could have done to the Eagle cause this year. It couldn't have hurt very much for despite their winning ways they didn't make money with crowds of 18,000 or so coming in at the gate. We believe TV would have created new fans for the Eagles and brought them out to the ball park since we feel TV makes fans rather than destroys them.

Back in the late 40's when the Eagles were winning the league titles, or fighting for them the games were televised and there was no adverse affect on attendance. The team drew crowds far superior to those of the current year. Certainly the TV rights for Eagle games are also worth much more now than then. The last offer we understand was about $40,000 for home games.

If restrictions are lifted and the government wins the suit, it doesn't mean the Eagles games at home will be carried. It just means that it will then be an individual club's right to decide, not the league's. Now the Eagles may feel that TV will hurt them and won't want their home games on TV.

But we're not hopeful that anything will be resolved even in time for next season. Regardless of how the court decides, the loser is certain to appeal to the Supreme Court which hurries for no mortal.

Local TV Screenings

Tom Moorehead

If you're wondering whether or not Tom Moorehead won his suit against Wally Butterworth, just take a gander at the new yellow Packard that Tom is sporting. It cost Tom exactly $4,167 and that represents only part of the settlement that Butterworth made as a result of using an idea that Tom and he created on the Meet the Champ show . . . A song which Bob Horn feels will be a hit, as do the kids on the Bandstand, is "It Won't Be Easy, Dear," which was written by localite Sam Gaudiosi, who wrote the lyrics during a six-year stretch when a skin ailment made him a virtual shut-in. He got the ideas from watching TV shows regularly and teamed up with composer Eddy DeLuca, who played the piano for Milton Berle and Jackie Gleason, to do a song which Cathy Allen has recorded on the Drexelbrook label.

Marge Weiting, whose dad was the president of the Boston News Bureau, loves working on doll clothes for her kids . . . Eleanor Glenn aspires to use her musical training on TV . . . If you want to see a house that is a house take a peek at Stan Lee Broza's domicile out in Devon. It is a 25-room mansion. One whole floor is dedicated to the files he and his wife have kept of the music, programs, etc. they have done over the years. The place is called Stanest to show it's a combination of Stan and his wife Esther . . . Chris Keegan has been doing a lot of benefits in the Northeast lately . . . How come Eddie Newman, who was such a big hit on radio several years ago, can't get a TV show of the late night variety . . . Now that Ed Hurst and Joe Grady have come to TV,a battle looms as to whether Bandstand or the 950-Club boys will pull the greater audience.

Tommy Ferguson Trio Sings

Night and Day

NIGHT and Day isn't just the title of a song that Tommy Ferguson Trio can sing. It's also a perfect description of WHEN they sing.

The boys have a schedule which would kill off most of us. They open up in the morning Monday through Friday by rising at 6:30, rehearsing at 7:30 and going on Ch. 10's Take Ten at 8:50 A.M. Twice a week they do the Fun and Fortune show at 2 P.M. and have rehearsals beforehand. Sundays they get up early for Candy Carnival workouts.

That would be enough for most performers, but each night the combine appears at Chubby's where they play from 9:30 P.M. to 12:30 A.M. except when the floor show goes on. Then they head for a 2 A.M. sleep and start all over the next day.

We tried the routine with them one night, leaving Chubby's when they did and coming in the next morning for their show. The bags showed under our eyes and yet the boys looked fresh as daisies. We asked how come.

"It's just a matter of routine," they confided. "We don't work hard in this business and the time goes fast since we enjoy what we're doing. Besides Saturday is our sleeping day and we catch up."

The trio, incidentally is composed of 27-year-old Tommy, the guitarist; Walt Eismann, 27, the accordionist, and Joe Perri, 24, the bass. Tommy does the business end, Walt the arranging, and Joe the clerical. All three are married.

Joe and Walt attended Frankford and Tommy went to North Catholic. The boys all played in their high school bands and drifted together after awhile. They took Tommy's name because he already had a group and it was easier to continue bookings under his name than start a new moniker. They first played together in Harrisburg and worked clubs until joining WCAU in 1949.

When Tommy told us that they would soon be on a daily afternoon network show to augment their present schedule, we left them trying to figure out when they were going to catch their accustomed catnaps.

BUSY BEES. Singing softly, backed by their melodic music is the specialty of the Tommy Ferguson Trio which includes (l to r) Tommy, Joe Perri and Walt Eismann.
